

GERMANS GET WARSAW.

Leopold Takes Polish Capital in Name of Emperor—Hindenburg's Men Real Conquerors.

London, Aug. 5.—The Germans hold Warsaw, capital of Poland and the third largest city in the Russian empire. Bavarian troops entered the city this morning, having taken successively the Blonie lines and the outer and inner fortresses of the city itself, the Russians only fighting in rearguard actions to allow their main army to escape.

While to the Bavarians under Prince Leopold has fallen the honor of taking over Warsaw in the name of the German emperor and his consort, who are expected to make a state entry within a few days, the real conquerors are Von Hindenburg's troops, fighting along the Narew river to the northeast; the Austro-Germans who crossed the Vistula to the south of the city; and the armies of the Austrian Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, and the German Field Marshal von Mackensen advancing northward between the Vistula and Bug rivers.

The Russians are fighting desperately and stubbornly to check the progress of these four armies and have had several successes, inflicting heavy losses on their pursuers; but they are being steadily pressed back, which made the longer occupation of the Warsaw Polish salient a hazardous undertaking.

Hard Road to Travel.

Even now, although the steadiness of the Russian troops and their fierce counterattacks have gained much valuable time for them, it is problematical whether the whole Russian army will reach new positions chosen or whether, if it should get there, it will not find those positions turned by the Austrians, who have crossed the Bug southeast of the Cholm and the Germans under von Schloz and von Gallwitz, who have crossed the Narew.

At the northeastern end of the line the Russian communications are further threatened by Gen. von Buelow, advancing toward Dvinsk on the Vilna-Petrograd railway. Indeed, the Austro-Germans have set three traps to catch and destroy the Russian army. None of them was sprung, but one was so near to closing that Grand Duke Nicholas was forced to evacuate Warsaw, and now is fighting with all his might to prevent the others from cutting off his retreat.

Thus far he seemingly has been successful, for although the Germans seem the capture of many prisoners, the aggregate is small when compared with the immense forces engaged. In addition the Russian guns apparently are well on their way to the rear.

From refugees who left Warsaw some days ago and have arrived at Moscow, it has been learned that Warsaw, even at that early date, had been denuded of virtually everything that might be useful to the Teutons. Factories had been stripped of their machinery and all war stores moved into the interior of Russia, and the government of the city left to the Polish population.

The Russians also are preparing to evacuate Riga in the north. The arrival of the Germans ten miles south of that city already has been the cause of the civilian population departing.

While expressing the fullest confidence in the future, the British military critics make no attempt to belittle the achievements of the Teutons or the effect their success is likely to have in the near East and the West.

Since early in May, when they started their great counteroffensive in western Galicia against the Russians, who were debouching through the Carpathians on to the plains of Hungary, the troops of the Germanic powers have cleared the Russians out of Galicia with the exception of a narrow strip of territory in the Southwest, have recaptured Przemysl and Lemberg, taken Lublin, Cholm and Warsaw and are in military occupation of virtually the whole of Poland. What their next move will be is a matter of conjecture. Some military observers believe they will continue to attack the Russians in the hope of finally crushing them, a task considered difficult by the fact that the Russians in their retreat lay the country waste.

Others of the observers think Servia will be attacked to impress the Balkan states, while still others look for a big offensive in the West. All of the observers are of the opinion that wherever the new operation is begun it will be on a big scale.

The Germans also have had local successes in the West, recapturing on the crest of the line in the Vosges a portion of the trenches which the French took from them some time ago.

In the center of Kildine, an island in the German ocean, is a curious lake. The surface of its waters is quite fresh and supports fresh water creatures, but deep down it is as salt as the greatest depths of the sea and salt water fish live in it.
